transit Railroad will not take off its boats to-morrow, as threatened.

Mr. Boardman said to-day that under the law a railroad has the right to run a ferry to land passengers in New York; that under that law the Rapid Transit Company could carry all passengers that rode in the cars of the Company, but could not carry any wagons or trucks.

but could not carry any wagons of trucks.

The boats, it is stated, are to run to the slip in New York of the ferry running to Thirty-ninth street, South Brooklyn, which is controlled by the Staten Island Rapid Transit Company.

Mr. Boardman says that the only persons the Rapid Transit Company cannot carry are those living at St. George, that being the termini of the two branches of the Company's railroad and also the points from which the boats leave

Mr. Boardman says that the Rapid Transit Company is prepared to carry all passengers to New York, just as it did formerly, with the exception of those living in St. George.

Howard Carroll said to an "Evening World" reporter to-dity:

"In behalf of the people whom I represent, I mean to execute the lease for this ferry franchise within a reasonable time. I say a reasonable time, because the lease is a document which requires careful consideration.

lease is a document which requires careful consideration.

"As a matter of fact, I don't know that any lease has been drawn up yet. I have not been notified, and I cannot execute until I am requested to do so by the Comptroller. He will notify me at the proper time, and then I shall comply with all the conditions of the sale. The payment to the Staten Island Rapid Transit Company of $175,000 is one of these conditions, and, of course, that will be compiled with.

"Now, as to the assertion that the boats of the Rapid Transit Company may stop running to-morrow night, I would like to say that if they stop I will have boats running on the following morning. There are to-day not less than thirty ferry-boats built especially for the purpose of carrying trucks and wagons whose owners are dying to rent them. Therefore, outside of the eighty odd boats Mr. Starin owns, there is no lack of material in that respect.

We do not propose to go into this thing as a fight, and we are perfectly willing to act in conjunction with the Rapid Transit Company. Ine franchise which we have purchased is an exclusive right. That has been demonstrated by Mr. Starin after a legal flight of ten years.

Indeed, I may say that the whole legal history of ferry franchises is contained in the case of Starin vs. the Mayor of New York. Then it was decided that the city could not sell to another that which they had already sold. In this case the city is our iandlord, and has no more right to give the Staten Island Rapid Transit Company a franchise than it has to make the same lease with themsthat it will with us.

"The fact that the Company continues to sell commutation tickets is no concern of mine. There certainly has been no agreement or understanding of any kind between us and the Ferry Company. Our relations are exactly the same as they were ten years ago, when the Rapid Transit Company robbed us of this very franchise. We have come into our own again, and the people of Staten Island, as well as of New York, may feel certain that the service will not deteriorate, but will be improved. I shall call upon the Comptroller today, and shall talk with him about the lease, but I shall call upon the Comptroller today, and shall talk with him about the intention of executing it."

General Supt. Gannou said to-day:

"One ferry or two?"
"Two ferries or none?"
Those are the stereotyped forms of greeting now in vogue on Staten Island and on the boats from St. George to this city.
Since last Saturday the Staten Island ferry franchise, which was sold to Howard Carroll on that day, has been the one absorbing topic of conversation among the residents of Richmond County.

The apparent dilatoriness of the new lessees of the ferry privilege has caused considerable comment, and the stand of the Rapid-Transit Company has mystified everybody.

To-day Howard Carroll returned to this city, and states emphatically that he intends to run the only ferry line between the islands of Mahhattan and Staten Island.

HIGHWAYMEN AT FORT LEE.

Wm. Fichtner Held Up and Robbed by Two Unknewn Men.
FORT LEE, N. J., Oct. 8.—William Fichtner, aged twenty, was attacked by highwaymen last night, while on his way home.
He was just passing a turn in the main road when he was grabbed by two powerful men who dragged him into the bushes. While one held him so he could not scream, the other went through his pockets and took $20 and a silver watch and chain. He gave a description of the men but they have not yet, been captured.
This makes the third "hold-up" that has taken place here in a week. The other night Thomas Debois, a printer, was held up and was relieved of his money.
The two men who robbed Fichtner answer the description given by Debois and the other victim, whose name is unknown.
